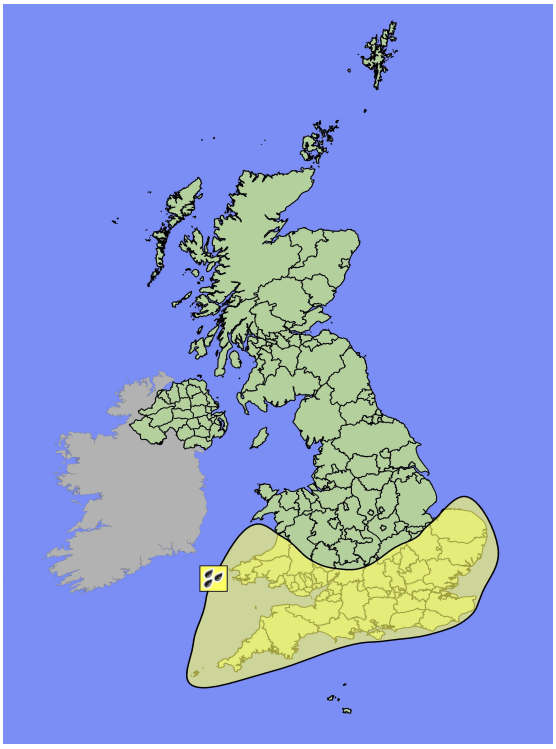
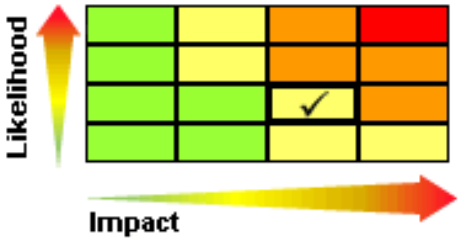
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another active frontal system is expected to affect parts of England and Wales during Christmas Eve, more especially southern areas. An additional 10-20 mm is probable quite widely with 30 mm possible over south facing hills of southwest England. Following heavy rainfall during previous days and given already saturated ground this rain is likely to lead to further surface water problems. This warning should be viewed in context with the amber warning over southwestern England where disruption is considered more likely.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012 until 23:59 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012

Further spells of rain are expected to affect parts of England and Wales during Christmas Eve, southern areas in particular. Given already saturated ground from recent rainfall, the public should be aware of the risk of further localised flooding and disruption to travel.
